> OLD DIANA .- We gave a paragraph in a former issue that a negro woman, named Diana, who had been purchased from slavery by abolitionists of tired of freedom, had sought out a neighbor of her former master, and importuned him to take her back to her Souther i home. Some mistakes oc-1.00 | curred in the account as given in the Herald, which the Edgefield Advertiser corrects as follows:

This is all correct, except that the gentleman called "Gould" is better known here as "Goode," and the Colonel's name is "Frazier" instead of "Frazier"

One or two further items we gather from Col. F. The old woman not only "begged piteously" to be brought back, but actually waited aloud in a pas-sage of the St. Nicholas and hung to the Colonel's skirts in the urgency of her anxiety. He asked her if she was actually suffering, to which she replied: "No, sir, I can't say so; but there's no bodyhere that cares for me. I want to go to my old home where l can have some friends. The poer creature felt the need of sympathy. With perhaps bread and clothing and shelter sufficient for h r tolerable com-fort, she yet knew herself to be alone, socially an negro in that so-called land of freedom.

Owing to the fact that Col. F. was on the very ve of departure, and could not possibly wait for Diana to make her little arrangements for leaving, he did not bring her South; other opportunities, however, will present themselves

A short time ago I became acquainted with the case of a young girl, who seemed to be troubled with worms and liver complaint at the same time, and had been suffering for some two months.
